411 SEEKING 27 PRIZES IN COLOR CONTEST

Contest to Select Best Coloring of Santa's Toyshop Closes Saturday.

DIFFICULT TO NAME WINNERS

The Christmas contest for the best coloring of Santa Claus's toyshop, the full page illustration that appeared several times in The Gettysburg Times, closes at four o'clock Saturday afternoon.

No colorings will be received after that hour. The business office of The Times closes from four o'clock in the afternoon until seven o'clock in the evening, Saturday. At four o'clock all colorings will be turned over to Miss Anna Mumper, art supervisor in Gettysburg's public schools, who will judge the colorings and announce the prize winners on December 24.

27 Cash Prizes
There are twenty-seven prizes to be awarded in the contest.

The first prize is $7.50 in cash. The second prize is $2.50 in cash.

The next five prize winners will each receive $1.

The next twenty prize winners will receive .50.

All prize winners will receive their awards on December 24.

That the task to select the twenty-seven best colorings of old St. Nick's toyshop will be a difficult one was evidenced today when additional colorings, brought to The Times office this morning, brought the total entrants to 411.

Some of the colorings are unusually attractive. Some are typical of a little boy or girl, ardently working with crayons or water colors, coloring the large drawing of Santa Claus busily engaged in making toys in his toyshop at the North Pole.

Appealing Letters
Many of the colorings indicate the work of one well versed in colorings.

Many pathetic, appealing letters accompany the colorings. The letters are addressed to Santa Claus in which the writer asks for various and countless toys, clothes, candy, fruits and other Christmas gifts.

Miss Mumper will be the sole judge of the twenty-seven winners. She will be compelled to study each coloring individually and select her winners based on cleanliness, coloring, neatness and ingenuity.

The winners will be announced in The Times on Tuesday.

BOARD URGES COMMUTATION FOR LAWRENCE

Governor Earle Asked To Commute 10-20-Year Sentence of Countian.

IS TRUSTY AT EASTERN PRISON

The board of pardons today recommended to Governor Earle that the sentence of Charles "Christy" Lawrence, of Centennial, be commuted. Lawrence was convicted April 28, 1928, and sentenced to serve from 10 to 20 years in the Eastern prison after his conviction for second degree murder.

At the hearing last Friday Frank P. Tucker, chief parole officer of the Eastern penitentiary, recommended commutation. He said Lawrence had an excellent prison record and had been given a position of trust in the prison storehouse.

No protestants to the commutation appeared at the hearing.

Victim Died Here

Lawrence, an old-time Adams county baseball player, was convicted of the "mauling murder" of John L. "Coxey" Lawrence, also of Centennial, in the former's shack, February 4, 1928. Although the victim and his convicted assailant had the same name, they were not related.

Lawrence, who was 52 years old when he was convicted of second degree murder in the Adams county courts, was sentenced to serve from 10 to 20 years in the Eastern penitentiary by Judge Donald P. McPherson, May 4, 1928. Lawrence was convicted at the April term of court, 1928.

The 48-year-old Oxford township school director, died at the Warner hospital, February 7, from the effects of a severe beating, presumably administered with a blunt instrument, in the elder Lawrence's shack in Irishtown three days before.

114 Are Questioned

The victim died without regaining consciousness, and a murder charge was immediately filed against the 52-year-old defendant, who was arrested shortly after neighbors found the pair in the latter's shanty in Irishtown.

Lawrence went on trial, April 26, with S. S. Neely, Esq., appointed by the court, defending him. One hundred and fourteen veniremen were questioned by District Attorney John P. Butt and Mr. Neely before a jury of 12 men were chosen.

Lawrence, on the stand in his own defense, admitted drinking heavily on the day the younger Lawrence was beaten, but said he could not remember having hit the victim.

COMMISSIONERS SAID TO NAME HORNER, CLERK

Defeated for Register And Recorder; Wagman to Help New Appointee.

OTHERS NAMED FOR POSITIONS

Speculation as to the appointments to be made by the new board of Adams county commissioners is increasing daily as the time for the commissioners to take up their duties draws nearer.

Republicans on the new board are in the majority, which means that the resignations of all of the appointees of the present democratic board will be asked.

The most important appointment to be made by the board—that of clerk to the commissioners—has been offered to and accepted by Winfield G. Horner, Cumberland township, according to well-informed circles.

Horner, who was defeated for register and recorder, last month, is well-qualified for the position of clerk, his friends point out. He was tax collector in Cumberland township for a number of years.

To Succeed Wagman
He will succeed Louis W. Wagman, clerk to the present board for four years. Wagman will remain in the office several months to help acquaint Horner with his duties.

The present board of commissioners increased Wagman's salary from $1,700 to $1,900 a year, and it is expected the incoming clerk will receive the same compensation owing to the increase in the volume of work in the office.

Reports at the court house were to the effect that J. Donald Swope, Esq., defeated for president-judge in the recent election, will succeed S. S. Neely, Esq., as solicitor for the board. Attorney Neely took over the work from J. L. Williams, Esq., when the latter became ill this year.

Sealer of Weights

The one job which the new board of commissioners is reported having the most difficulty filling, owing to the large number of applicants, is that of sealer of weights and measures, now held by James C. Cole, of The Narrows.

This $1,000-a-year post is causing the republican members of the board many "headaches," according to reports. At one time, it was reliably reported there were more than 40 applicants for the position.

But within the past few days, the republican majority on the board is said to have whittled the list down to three.

Among those reported to have been applicants for the sealer's job were G. R. Thompson, republican county chairman; Donald Hammers, John Milhimes, Charles Conover, Merritt Frame, William Deatrick, Philip Houck, Harry C. Stock, Fremont W. Weigle, J. Burton Withrow and Thad Blocher.

Jail Physician

A physician at the Adams county jail is another appointment to be made by the commissioners. Dr. H. M. Hartman holds the position now. Dr. R. W. Gifford, of Gettysburg, and Dr. Wilbur H. Miller, New Oxford, are being mentioned for the position after the first of the year. The position carries a salary of $200 a year, plus $1 for each prisoner examined.

The commissioners also must fill the position of janitor at the court house, now held by Frank Sheely, with Allen McQuigun as his assistant. Two colored residents of Gettysburg, Wilson Marsh, and Ben Carter, had petitions in circulation (Continued on Page Two)

Britain's Government Gets Vote of Confidence After Minister Apologizes.

London, Dec. 20 (AP).—Great Britain's house of commons, tossed by a tempest of bitter and pleading words, rallied a grousing majority behind Stanley Baldwin's government Thursday night in the face of the prime minister's avowed "mistake" on African peace.

In a midnight ballot, the United Kingdom's chosen legislators rejected, 397 to 165, a labor motion of censure for the government's part in the discredited Anglo-French plan to end the war in Africa by territorial concessions to a fighting Italian Duce.

12 Hours of Drama Thus "Honest Stan's" Tory party, victor by thumping margins in general elections held only last month, ended 12 hours of drama by beating down an opposition attempt to brand the cabinet with "disgracing the nation."

Earlier in the night the House of Lords, without a division, had upheld the government.

Baldwin, somber and wan, frankly threw himself on the mercy of the house in the silent, fog-bound chamber.

Admits To Error "It was an error of judgment," he admitted. "Such a position shall not be possible again."

But from frail, bandaged Sir Samuel Hoare, the resigning foreign secretary who helped Premier Pierre Laval of France write the plan, came this stirring defense: "It was in an atmosphere of war that our discussions took place."

"Ever since I have been in the foreign office, I have been obsessed with the urgent duty of doing everything to prevent a European conflagration."

Weeps As He Leaves Weeping, he stumbled from the chamber amid cheers from an assemblage often openly hostile to Baldwin.

The Prince of Wales listened intently to Sir Samuel's speech.

The day-long debate ended with a bitter cry from Hugh Dalton, militant laborite, that the hands of a "lunatic" Mussolini are "dripping with a mixture of Ethiopian blood and British oil," and a brave defense of Hoare by Neville Chamberlain, Baldwin's chancellor of the exchequer.

Chamberlain's Defense Chamberlain said Hoare "sacrificed his great position from a sense of duty and from the prompting of his own conscience," and assured the house that France had given Great Britain "the most complete and loyal assurances that they will come to our aid if we are attacked by Italy."

"If the League of Nations should decide that oil sanctions should be applied," he said, "and that they can be effective, and should we be satisfied that all members of the league are not only ready to give us assurances but are prepared to take their part in meeting an attack which might be sudden and unexpected, then we, too, are prepared to play our part and agree to the imposition of oil sanctions."

Baldwin said that he would not let such a mistake happen again and that it was a lesson to him.

Todd Case Looks Like Murder, Grand Jury Foreman Asserts

Los Angeles, Dec. 20 (AP).—George W. Rochester, foreman of the Los Angeles county grand jury, declared Thursday night evidence he has gathered indicates strongly that Thelma Todd, screen actress, might have been a "monoxide murder victim."

Rochester announced he had issued a subpoena for Pasquale Di Cicco, former husband of Miss Todd and an artists' agent.

Di Cicco now is in New York. He left Los Angeles by airplane the day after the body was found. He said he was going East to spend the holidays with relatives.

"We are not pointing the finger of suspicion at anyone," said Rochester. "We are anxious to learn from Mr. Di Cicco, for whom a subpoena has been issued, whether there was anything in Miss Todd's life that might lead him to believe she was murdered."

Di Cicco was asked by Rochester to appear before the grand jury

BORAH AGREES TO ENTER RACE

Tells Wisconsin Visitors They May Use Name for G. O. P. Candidacy.

Washington, Dec. 20. — A statement by Senator Borah of Idaho, considered by some to be tantamount to an announcement that he would seek the republican presidential nomination, was given to newspapermen Thursday night in response to inquiries.

Two Wisconsin republicans, after a series of conferences with the Idahoan, first announced that he had endorsed a proposal to elect a Borah-for-President delegation form that state to the 1936 republican convention.

Asked about this, Borah replied: "I told them that whatever they did along that line I would stand in with them."

Projected Into Race

The original statement, by state senator Philip E. Nelson, of Maple, Wis. and former State Senator Bernhard Gettelman, of Milwaukee, coupled with Borah's reply, certainly projected him into the nomination race further than any previous public pronouncement.

Borah gave a somewhat similar reply recently to friends who wished to enter his name in the Ohio primary. He has never formally announced that he would be a candidate, however, even though saying he had a "1936 objective."

The Idahoan last night explained that Nelson and Gettelman had proposed putting up "a delegation representing the liberal forces in the party out here, and in my name."

He added again that he had agreed to "go along with them."

Begin Organization

The two visiting republicans said they would return to Wisconsin immediately and organize a Borah-for-President organization in their state, circulate nominating petitions and "do all that is necessary to secure Borah pledged delegates to the national convention." They added that they had made the trip to Washington on their own volition to submit their proposal to the Idaho senator.

"We have been in conference with Senator Borah the past two days and as a result he has endorsed a plan which we submitted to him of selecting a delegation to the Republican convention pledged to him for the nomination of President," Nelson and Gettelman said.

"It is our belief that the American people—and we are particularly earnest on the one hand and on the posed to a bureaucratic form of government with Wisconsin—are opposed to the Hoover-Mellon-Mills-Daugherty crowd dominated by Wall Street."

LIST GRAVES OF WAR VETS

A project for the registration of the graves of all war veterans buried in Adams county will get under way next Monday.

Approval of the project, submitted by the Adams county commissioners, was received today by Louis W. Wagaman, clerk, from Henley S. Eden, district superintendent of professional and service projects, Harrisburg.

Elmer Dillman, New Oxford, will be in charge of the project. Two typists and seven registrars will also be employed.

Those assigned to the project were today notified to appear at the office of the county commissioners next Monday.

The registrars will list the names of veterans of all wars buried in every cemetery in Adams county.

Monday morning when it will investigate the strange death of Miss Todd, whose body was found last Monday morning in her garage. The coroner's jury yesterday gave a verdict of apparent accidental death by monoxide gas fumes from the automobile exhaust, but recommended further investigation.

The grand-jury foreman would not disclose where he had obtained his asserted additional information or exactly what it was.

A more searching inquiry into the mystery began today with projected police questioning of three central figures.

Joseph Taylor, detective chief, ordered officers to question again Roland West, business partner and "best friend" of the actress, and to interview Charles Smith, treasurer of the Todd-West Cafe, as well as Robert J. Anderson, cafe bartender.

While 12,000 persons filed past Miss Todd's orchid satin bier, where the body lay in blue satin lounging pajamas, the question of the time of death produced still another puzzle.

Says She Saw Actress

Mrs. Roland West, estranged wife of Miss Todd's business partner, told officers she saw the actress riding with "a dark-looking foreigner" in Hollywood at 11 p. m. Sunday—several hours after the approximate time coroner's officials said death occurred.

The inquest verdict yesterday merely said death "seemed" accidental from circumstances surrounding finding of the body in a garage the 30-year-old actress shared with West. Further inquiry was urged.

DEATH SENTENCE FOR SLAYER OF 6

Ex-Pugilist Convicted of Wholesale Murder; Woman Is Acquitted.

Port Orchard, Wash., Dec. 20 (AP).—Death for husky Leo Hall, 33, ex-pugilist and one time ministerial student, was recommended Thursday by a jury that convicted him of the Erland's Point mass murder of six persons in March, 1934.

Acquitted was blonde Peggy Peterson Paulos, co-defendant, whose signed statement caused Hall's arrest two months ago. Her testimony formed the basis of the state's case.

Hall, openly defiant during preliminary stages of his prosecution, smiled quietly as he heard the verdict. His lawyers said a new trial would be sought.

Mrs. Paulos and Hall were charged specifically with the murder of Eugene Chenevert, one of six persons beaten, hacked and shot to death at a party in the Frank Fleider home at Erland's Point, Washington, the night of March 28, 1934.

Robbery As Motive

The state contended robbery was the motive. Mrs. Paulos testified Hall forced her to accompany him to Erland's Point on a robbery venture, and that she helped him bind the six persons in the Fleider home. She said she fled, however, when fighting started.

At the time of her first statement the woman was quoted as saying she saw Hall carry Mrs. Frank Fleider, one of the victims, into a bedroom. When he reappeared, she said, his clothing was covered with blood. She said she ran from the house, a short time later.

Later, on a Bremerton street, she met Hall and "he told me that he had killed them all," she was quoted.

The victims were Mr. and Mrs. Fleider, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Chenevert, Magnus Jordan and Fred Belmont.

Mrs. Paulos Confessed

Mrs. Paulos was charged with Hall because of her confession as an accomplice. The law provides that a killing committed during the commission of another crime is a first degree murder, and that accomplices in the first crime can be convicted of murder, though they killed no one.

Prosecutors urged the jury of eight men and four women to return a maximum verdict against Hall, but made no attempt to bring a death penalty to Mrs. Paulos.

Judge H. G. Sutton did not set a time for pronouncing the mandatory death sentence.

MILNE DIRECTS G-MEN TO LAIR OF KIDNAPPERS

Wealthy Youth Is Kept Drugged for 4 Days; Held in Farm House.

DESCRIPTION OF SUSPECTS GIVEN

Doylestown, Pa., Dec. 20 (AP).—Caleb J. Milne 4th gave Federal agents Thursday a description of four men who kidnapped him in New York, and through his description enabled them to find the hideout where he was held prisoner for four days.

Milne, scion of a wealthy Philadelphia family, was abandoned by his abductors Wednesday night on a highway near Doylestown. Government authorities said no ransom was paid.

Federal agents and a stenographer, who sat at his bedside in a hospital, took his story.

First Kidnap Hideout

They said they had found the hideout—a dilapidated house on a farm near Wrightstown, in South-eastern Bucks county, about ten miles southeast of the spot where Milne was thrown out of a car last night—from an accurate description of movements made by the kidnapers given by Milne.

The agents said they sent identification orders on the four kidnapers to every Federal Bureau of Investigation office in the country.

Near the hideout they said they found a hypodermic syringe and two needles, which they believe the kidnapers used to keep Milne in a condition bordering on unconsciousness during the four days and nights he was held.

The agents said they also found several tin cans, recently opened, from which they believe the abductors obtained their food. Milne said he was given food only once during his imprisonment.

Remembers Very Little

Recuperating from exposure and heavy doses of a narcotic, Milne informed the agents he could recall scarcely a thing of what occurred from Sunday night until Wednesday night.

He remembered the kidnapers, however, because he saw each one before he was given the narcotic. Agents said Milne told of answering a telephone call from a "Dr. Green, of Grade Square," in New York. He met the "doctor" on Saturday at the square.

Milne had been told on the telephone that his grandfather, Caleb J. Milne, Jr., was "very ill" in Philadelphia and wished to see him. The "Dr. Green" was to take him to Philadelphia.

Agents said Milne related that three other men met the "doctor" in the park and all five set out in a sedan for Philadelphia.

They passed through the Holland Tunnel and over the Pulaski Skyway, took a branch road leading toward Phillipsburg, N. J., and Easton, Pa.

Turned Into Dirt Road

They rode along for several miles, the agents said Milne related, then suddenly turned into a dirt road near Summit, New Jersey.

Then, the agents said, Milne was told he was kidnapped.

The agents said Milne told them one or the men informed him:

"You're not going to see any doctor. You're going to stay with us. And keep your mouth shut, too if you know what's good for you."

"I was scared," Milne told the agents. "I was so scared I didn't know what to do. I didn't know what they might do."

Agents said the young man related the abductors put a blindfold on him in the Branch road and did not remove it until they reached Somerville, New Jersey. Leaving the town, the blindfold was again bound over his eyes and he was shoved down on the floor of the car.

Then Lost Car's Route

After that, Milne said, he lost the route, but surmised that the party crossed the Delaware river into Pennsylvania at Phillipsburg. The agents said he thought that they drove to a point about 10 miles below New Hope, then turned westward to Wrightstown.

The agents said Milne told them the blindfold was removed before they walked into the farm house. Then they took his watch, so that he was not clear as to time.

"Sunday," Milne related, "they stuck the first needle into me."

Hospital physicians said Milne's right arm had about 25 marks made by a hypodermic needle.

The same day, the abductors attempted to force Milne to write a note to his grandfather in Philadelphia, but he refused. After that, the agents said, the young man was not able to recall what happened until Wednesday.

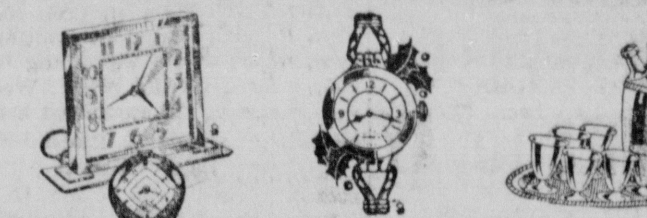

At that time there were only two men in the house, judging from the sound of their movements. Milne's eyes and mouth were taped.

"Come on, you're going home," Milne said some one told him, at the same time slapping his face.

Milne recalled riding again in an automobile and being pushed from it.

Chapter 23 HAPPY RETURN

George Fox had been flying so long he felt like a bird. The plane set him down in Washington at the end of his long air jaunt. Sam Jennings of the Latin American Affairs Division was there to meet him. They got into an official car driven by a Department chauffeur and rolled companionably along toward the city.

"Pretty important fellow, huh?" grinned Jennings. "Special mission to the State Department. Hot dog!" "Beautiful women spies tried to cut my hair even as I fell into Samson," Fox assented, "but I felled 'em. Know where I kept the secret formula KX2117539 that all foreign powers have been trying to get?"

"No! Where?" Fox nodded mysteriously.

"In a hollow tooth," he said in triumph.

"What a master mind," commented Jennings. "Lucky there weren't any beautiful women dentists on your trail. Seriously, George, how are things down there?"

"Cooling off, but they'll be pot-shooting each other for a long time. Regular army tactics never prove much, but guerrilla warfare and mob violence are a reign of terror. The Ambassador had some notions on the arms embargo treaty, Monroe Doctrine, and a few other matters, so he sent me up with the dope and wangled a leave of absence for me at the same time. Nothing very startling."

"No," said Jennings, "just enough so that I have to break in on the Secretary's week-end with his pipe, book, and collie, to bring him this dope of yours. We've been waiting for you. He doesn't know which way to jump on this arms embargo business. Paul Revere Fox, that's you."

"Fuh!" said Fox. "I'm one of these ornamental and inconsequential things known as an attaché. People stumble over me and wonder why the streets aren't paved better."

"Well, all I've got to say is don't marry a burlesque queen, rob a bank, or poison your grandmother, and you'll get plenty far. This is more than leave of absence for you, George. You're going to be assigned to duty at the Department for a while and then transferred. Don't know where exactly, but I think you're ticketed for St. James. You've dented some pretty important consciousness around here with the fact of your existence."

"Put it down to connections, private income, and the grab bag," yawned Fox.

"Ever modest. Glad to be back?" Fox clasped his hands behind his head, stretched his legs, and looked out the window as the car turned into the city proper.

"I feel as though I were coming coming back for a college reunion," he said dreamily. "You know—the memory of old faces, old scenes, long spring afternoons with nothing on your mind. Come back and recapitulate something that you have discovered was priceless, that you didn't realize you need so much."

"Hmmin," murmured Jennings, eyeing him thoughtfully.

"I remember," went on Fox, "when I was a youngster in prep school. Sat at commencement waiting to hear if my name was going to be called for a certain prize. Wanted it like the devil. Squirmed around in my seat and tried to look unconcerned at the same time."

"The Headmaster came to the front of the platform, adjusted his spectacles, looked at a piece of paper, there was a deep hush, and—well, that's how I feel now."

"Who is she?" said Jennings. Fox started, then he smiled.

"You leap to conclusions like a damned mountain goat playing leapfrog with the Alps."

"Some men stutter," said Jennings with conviction, "and others write poetry. Lousy poetry. My brother used to stand before the canary bird's cage with a glazed look in his eyes and twitter the canary into heebie-jeebies. My father said his experience was an attack of cramps. Personally, I always went deep-sea fishing. Love has all kinds of reactions."

"You ought to write a monograph on the subject."

"I would," said Jennings, "but why let my wife know how many times I went deep-sea fishing before I met her?"

Fox saw no reason, and let it go at that. Seeing that no information was forthcoming, Jennings swung back to the business of arms embargo treaties, finances, and the Secretary's week-end comfort, until he dropped Fox at a hotel.

"Remember," he warned humorously, "don't get caught in any funny places, and be sure the lady is socially acceptable to be a future big shot's wife."

"My regards to the Secretary," said Fox. "Tell him my life for my country any time except when I'm on leave."

Jennings waved a hand and drove off. Fox checked in at the hotel and then took a taxi to Eleanor West's home. He had no surety that Allaire would be there; he could only hope. The butler thought she might be in her mother's cocktail salon.

He took the little private elevator to the second floor and stepped out into a long red and silver room filled with Eleanor's usual cocktail crowd.

Three Japanese boys went about with trays of cocktails and highballs among gay chatting groups. Allaire wasn't anywhere to be seen, but her mother was sitting in a corner deeply attentive to an earnest young man with very dark hair and very high white forehead.

As he talked he frequently ran his hand up over his forehead and through his thick poetical raven locks. He was talking about lights, as Fox approached, vibrations and lights, dirty yellow lights, pure white lights, pink lights—all twinkling.

Eleanor interrupted him to extend a languid hand to Fox. She was quite beautiful, her hair like Allaire's except that constant sessions with the hairdresser failed to give it the same natural wealth of live color.

"Hello, George. Back from the wilds? Nice of you to drop in. Let me introduce Mr. Valaour."

Fox met Mr. Valaour, then he turned back to her.

"I'm looking for Allaire—is she here?"

"No, she isn't. I don't know where she is. She went out last night before dinner and hasn't come back." She put a cigaret in a long holder unconcernedly. Her daughter's disappearance was nothing unusual to her. "Do go on, Jacques. This is a new religion," she added to Fox.

"Not new," protested Mr. Valaour. "It is as old as the world itself. It belongs to the Ptolemies. Oh, no, do not mistake yourself; it is not new. It is merely adapted to modern thought and terms. Your personality is expressed in terms of lights all vibrating about the One Main Light."

"I'm terribly interested," murmured Allaire's mother.

Fox wasn't. It sounded like gibberish to him. He excused himself. So Nell was investigating a new religion now. Or, perhaps, it was Mr. Valaour who was being investigated.

He was walking through clusters of chattering humanity toward the exit when somebody tapped him on the shoulder.

"You do not remember me, Mrs. Fox?"

The attache found a tall man at his elbow, a handsome smiling man, dressed impeccably from the tips of his grey-spatted shoes to the white carnation of his lapel.

Fox recalled him with a certain shock of surprise. It was Ramon LaMarr who had met Nell West in the Argentine and followed the polo party north. He was a big game hunter and globe trotter, or something. So he said.

"I remember you, of course," said Fox, shaking hands.

"I have wanted to see you for some time. What fortune we should meet."

"What can I do for you?" inquired Fox.

"A great deal," said LaMarr, "but I will do a great deal for you, too. An exchange—no?" He laughed.

"Let us have a drink together."

"Sorry," said Fox. "I'm trying to find somebody."

"Ah," said LaMarr. "Somebody? Miss Allaire West, perhaps?"

His voice ended on a raised note of suggestive inquiry.

Fox hesitated. He didn't care for LaMarr—hadn't ever since Allaire had termed him a scavenging shark following in the wake of a ship.

She had tried to chase him away from her light-headed mother sev-

An Evening Thought

A little work, a little play
To keep us going—and so, good-day!
A little warmth, a little light
Of love's bestowing—and so, goodnight!

A little fun, to match the sorrow
Of each day's growing—and so, good morrow!

A little trust that when we die
We reap our sowing! And so—goodbye!—George du Maurier.

Then Joseph came and told Pharo-ah, and said, My father and my brethren, and their flocks, and their herds, and all that they have, are come out of the land of Canaan;
and behold, they are in the land of Goshen.

And he took some of his brethren, even five men, and presented them unto Pharaoh.

And Pharaoh said unto his brethren, What is your occupation? And they said unto Pharo-ah, Thy servants are shepherds, both we, and also our fathers.

They said moreover unto Pharo-ah, For to sojourn in the land are we come; for thy servants have no pasture for their flocks;
for the famine is sore in the land of Canaan: now therefore, we pray thee, let thy servants dwell in the land of Goshen.

And Pharaoh spake unto Joseph, saying, Thy father and thy brethren are come unto thee:

The land of Egypt is before thee; in the best of the land make thy father and brethren to dwell;
in the land of Goshen let them dwell; and if thou knowest any man of activity among them, then make them rulers over my cattle.

And Joseph brought in Jacob his father, and set him before Pharaoh: and Jacob blessed Pharo-ah.

And Pharaoh said unto Jacob,
How old art thou?

And Jacob said unto Pharaoh,
The days of the years of my pilgrimage are a hundred and thirty years: few and evil have the days of the years of my life been, and have not attained unto the days of the years of the life of my fathers in the days of their pilgrimage.

And Jacob blessed Pharaoh, and went out from before Pharaoh.

ILLEGAL HUNTING BRINGS SENTENCE

Carlisle.—Roy Moore, 45, of Mechanicsburg, R. D. 4, was committed to the county jail this week after he made a belated appearance before Justice of the Peace John Robertson on charge of illegal hunting. A hearing had been set for Monday. He was sent to serve twenty days in jail in default of paying the $20 fine imposed at the hearing. Robert Nace, 23, and Merle Nace, 17, stepsons of Moore, were fined $20 each on a charge of illegal hunting last month.

VENISON DISTRIBUTED TO NEEDY FAMILIES

Mechanicsburg.—Venison from illegally killed deer was distributed to needy families here Wednesday through the combined efforts of the Mechanicsburg Sportsmen's Protective association and the Mechanicsburg Welfare federation and the co-operation of the state game commission. The meat was prepared without cost at a local meat market.

FRANKLIN COUNTY

KILL OF DEER AT NEW HIGH

Chambersburg.—The slaughter of legal deer in Franklin county the past season exceeded that of last year. Game Protector William Britton said Wednesday that 232 bucks were known to have been killed the past season. This was 56 more than the 176 killed during the 1934 season. Twenty-five illegal deer—spike bucks and does—were also slaughtered.

ELECTED PRESIDENT OF MEDICAL SOCIETY

Chambersburg.—Dr. S. G. Coons, Dry Run physician, was Sunday afternoon elected president of the Franklin County Medical society at the annual election during the course of the December session in the Chambersburg hospital. Dr. Coons succeeds Dr. D. M. Shoemaker, Waynesboro.

CANNERS CLOSE 21ST CONVENTION

York.—The Pennsylvania Canners association closed its twenty-first annual convention with a banquet attended by more than 150 men of the industry Wednesday evening, at the Hotel Yorktowne.

FINED $50 FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

York.—Fred S. Campbell, 34, salesman, of Swarthmore, Delaware county, paid a fine of $50 in police court Wednesday on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct after police testified the car he was driving struck two parked cars in the downtown section earlier in the day.

BENEVOLENCE FOR 300 FAMILIES

York.—Three hundred families received food and fuel Wednesday at the weekly distribution of the York Benevolent association. The following products were distributed: Six and one-half tons of coal, one and one-fourth cords of split wood, twenty-eight bushels of potatoes, thirty-two gallons of syrup, 625 loaves of bread, and seven and one-half bushels of onions.

—Looking Around—

Coach George Forney's Gettysburg high cagers will try for their second straight triumph this evening when they battle the Scotland industrial school hoopers, at Scotland. The Maroons are expected to show improved form over their opening night performance when they missed many easy shots and displayed a tinge of nervousness. The same lineup that played against Washington township high will be used though different combinations may be expected.

Tonight the Gettysburg Fleet-Wings will play the Smith-Peify quintet, Allentown city champions, on the Hotel Gettysburg annex court. The attendance at this game will largely determine the number of tilts the Wings will stage at home. Poor attendance last year caused the Wings officials to schedule many of their games for Frederick and Hagerstown.

Local fans will find the Wings using practically the same lineup that cavorted last year. Among those missing are Lou Reilly and Hugh Hoke. Steve Vergot, Steelton flash, has been added to the squad and is putting up a fine game. Others to be in action tonight are Manager Charley Gilbert, Ivan Kitzmiller, Cal Heller, Jake Drach, Art Zahn and Eddie Gullian. The Bream and Plank quintet will play the Littles.

with only a scattering of good kinds in the steer classifications, while most cows were low cutters and cutters. An equally narrow demand accompanied the reduction in supplies, and trade proved to be rather draggy, with prices generally averaging around steady. A few instances of weak to lowered terms became noticeable on some medium grade steers, while a few bulls appeared a little higher.

Most of the common and medium grade steers, principally lightweights, sold at $20.00a25; several lots and loads of short legs making between $17.50a25. Late Wednesday a few loads of medium to good around 1,200-pound steers, sold at $25.00a30.

The peak price found today was $27.50 paid for a load of good fed yearlings scaling around 1,400 pounds. A few scattered lots of real common steers were noted down to $6. Old lots of common and medium heifers brought $5.00a7.50.

Bulk of the low cutter and cutter cows cleared at $3.50a5.00; scattered sales of beef cows reached $2.50 to $5; a few good stable-fed cows up to $6.50. Common and medium bulls brought $4.00a7.50, an occasional weight individual to $10, while a few good beef bulls reached $6.75.

Calves—The calf and vealer supply numbered 175 and trade ruled moderately active at steady prices. Good and choice grade vealers brought $11.00a12; common and medium grades $7a11. A scattering of common and medium grade weaners turned at $5a7; sales most frequently around $6.

Hogs—The hog supply was estimated at 350. Trade showed a little better action than was in evidence previously this week, but demand still narrow at the local market. Some sellers reported a little price advance, while others continued steady, which made run steady to 10c higher than Wednesday. Good and choice grade 140-210 pound weights cleared at $10.00a10.50, the latter price top. Desirable 220-260-pound averages sold at $9.00a10.20, heavier weights downward to $9.25. Desirable 120-140 pound weights were saleable at $10a11; good packing sows brought $8.50a9; a few light-weights to $9.10 and above. Stags were saleable around $7.25 down.

Sheep—The sheep and lamb supply, numbering around 500, found a ready outlet at fairly steady prices. Good and choice grade ewe and wether lambs of desirable weight sold at $11.50a12 mostly. Common and medium grades were noted at $8a9; a few culls around $7. The discrimination against heavy lambs was generally felt on kinds weighing around 100 pounds or over, which were subjected to discounts of $1 and more. Slaughter ewes sold strong, while choice lightweight ewes were quotable strong to 25c higher. Good and choice ewes that were fairly weighty sold at $8a9; some common and cull lots down to $3.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams
PESKY YESTERDAY

YESTERDAYS are never very kind to us—after they have left us! Sooner or later we have to let go of them forever, but many of us try to hang on to them, as though they owed us something.

Our common sense tells us how futile it is to worry and fret about things that have already become history. We can't live it over, so we can't have any part of it ever again—we can't do anything about it. When milk is spilled, it is spilled, and that's the end of it.

The mind should have a new garment for each one of its new days. The same garment would not do, for the mind either shrinks or enlarges. It never remains the same.

There are a great many people who do not realize that they are carrying around a great pack of dead yesterdays upon their backs. They show it in their faces and in their attitude of mind. Their faces are long and their thoughts are sour. Others, however, walk lightly and there is a welcome look across every plane of each face.

I sat in the lobby of a busy hotel today and watched the people there. I picked out the faces that were tagged with the welcome sign—faces that told that they were approachable and friendly. Faces with no yesterday signs—except those of triumph and courage—hanging there.

It's the youth that we put into ideas that keeps us from cracking and falling apart long before our allotted time. Yesterday is loaded with old ideas, worn out and abandoned.

Said the calm and wise Marcus Aurelius: "What right have I to vex myself, when I never willfully vexed another?"

Time actually plays no favorites. We are not asked to become famous, or wealthy, or anything else, for that matter, but we are asked by a great God to be ourselves and to try to make the most of everything that we are. Judgment for our happiness or success rests finally upon our own shoulders.

We are so small, take up so little space—but what a universe! Why should we find fault? The good that we put into this universe never dies out. There is a purpose behind every birth, behind every thought and action.

Washington, Dec. 20. (AP)— highway near this city Thursday night and injured critically.

Schall, a Republican, is one of Capitol Hill's bitterest critics of President Roosevelt's Administration.

The accident occurred at Cottage City, Md., a few miles north of

Hyattsville Man Arrested

Police arrested a man identified as L. G. Humphries, of Hyattsville, as the driver of the car, charging him with reckless driving. He later was released on his personal bond.

Almost two hours after the accident, Schall was reported still unconscious.

The Senator's son, Dick Schall, said that his father was on his way to see two Minnesota friends off for their home at the time he was injured.

Young Schall reconstructed the accident as follows:

Accompanied by William Laughlin and H. Berkson, the friends, and his secretary, Orel Leen, Schall had started out by automobile for the city from his home, "Wynecrest," at Cottage City. They halted near the Schall home and the Senator and Leen alighted to go into a store.
Finding that store closed, they started to cross the street. Leen assisting Schall. An automobile struck both men as they stepped out into the roadway.

Leen, taken to the hospital with Schall, was found to be suffering only from shock and bruises.

The Senator's wife and son both hurried to Schall's bedside.
